A THOUGHT EXPERIMENT

You came alone. Who do you walk up to?

Twenty minutes of break. A room full of strangers holding coffee.

So… nice weather for a conference?

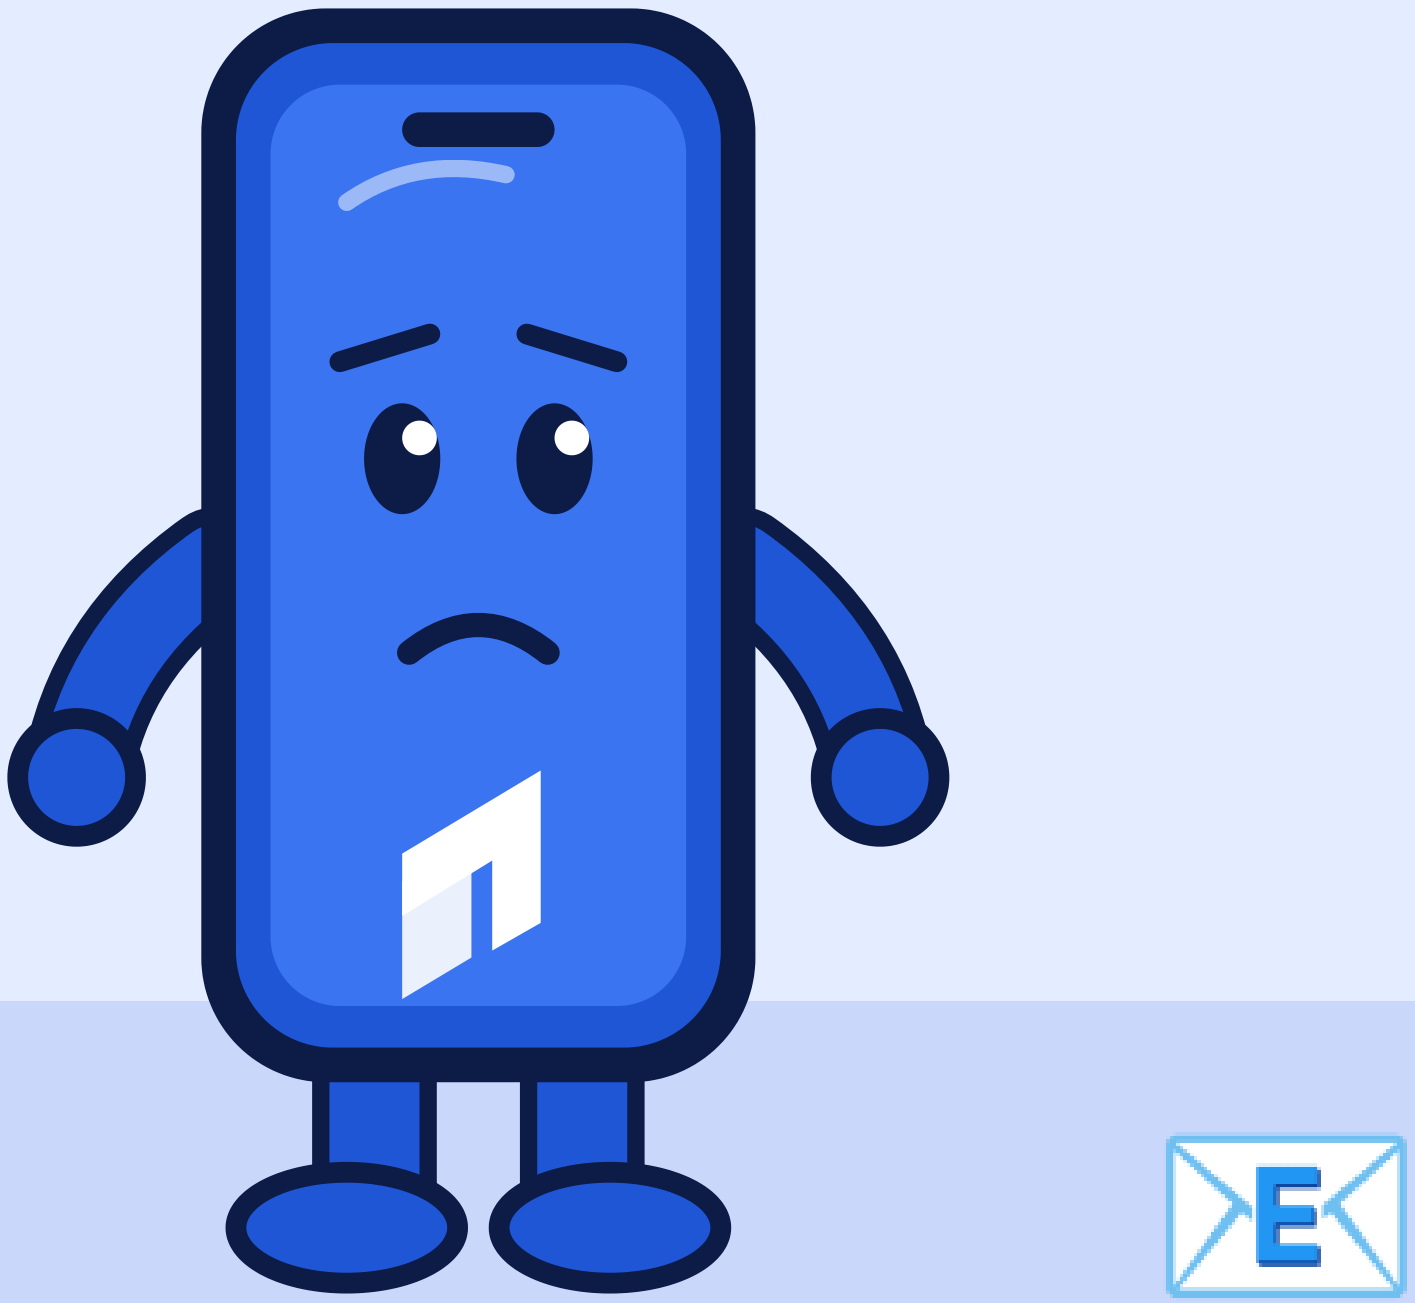

SWIPE →

RUN 1

Most of us pick whoever is nearest the urn. Or nobody, and answer emails.

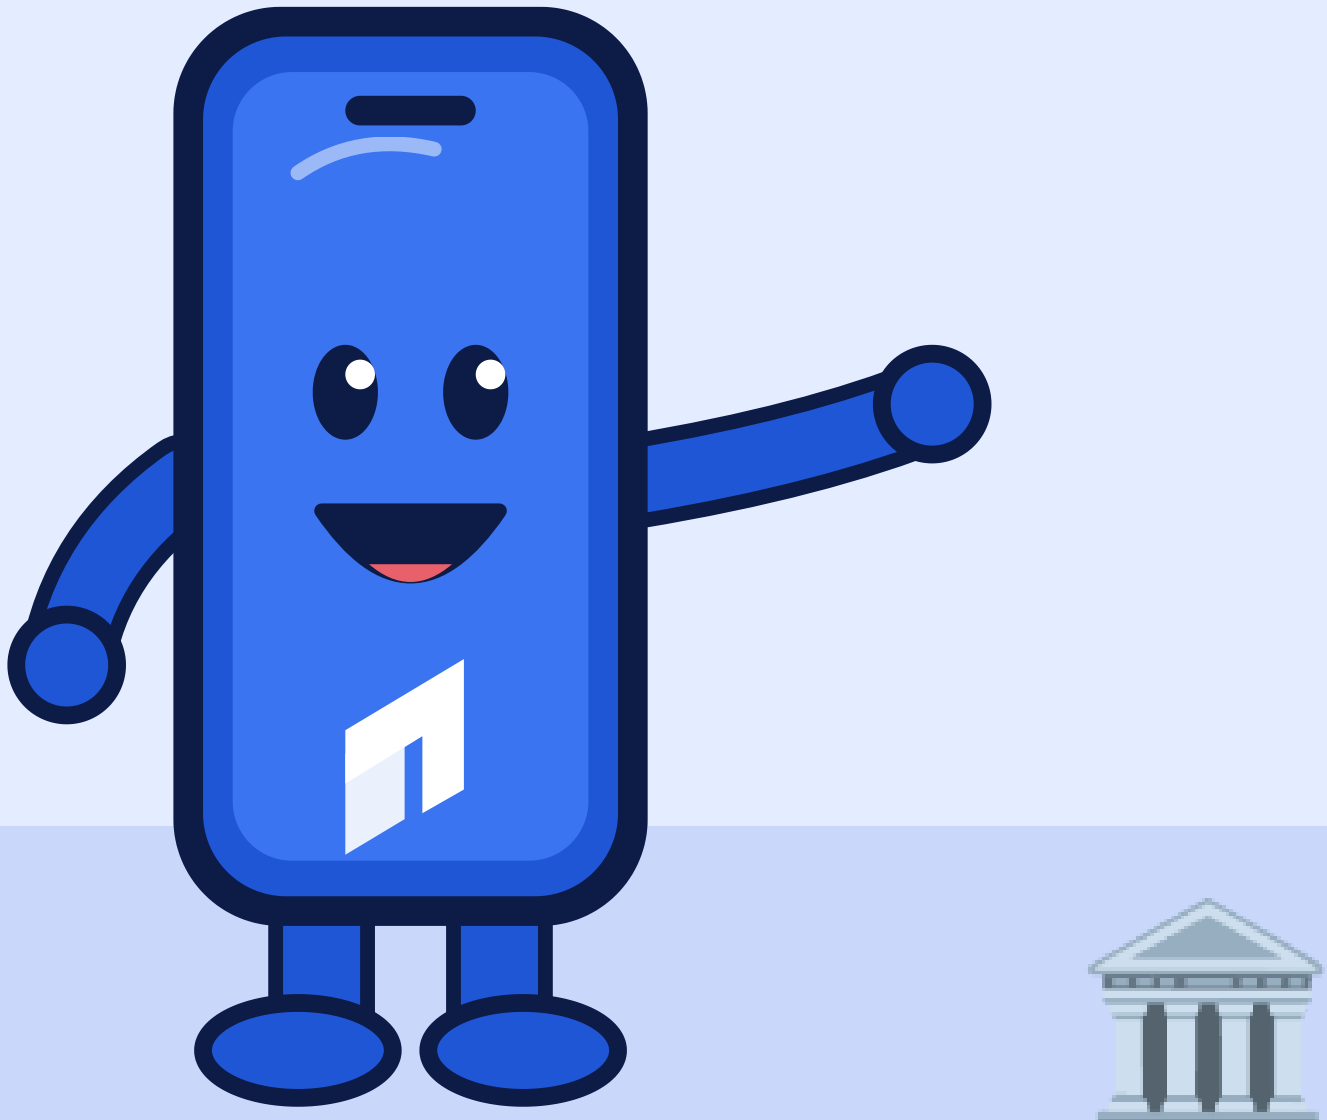

I'll just check my inbox. Again.

RUN 2

Before the day you saw who's coming: three heads of events, two venue managers, one from a museum.

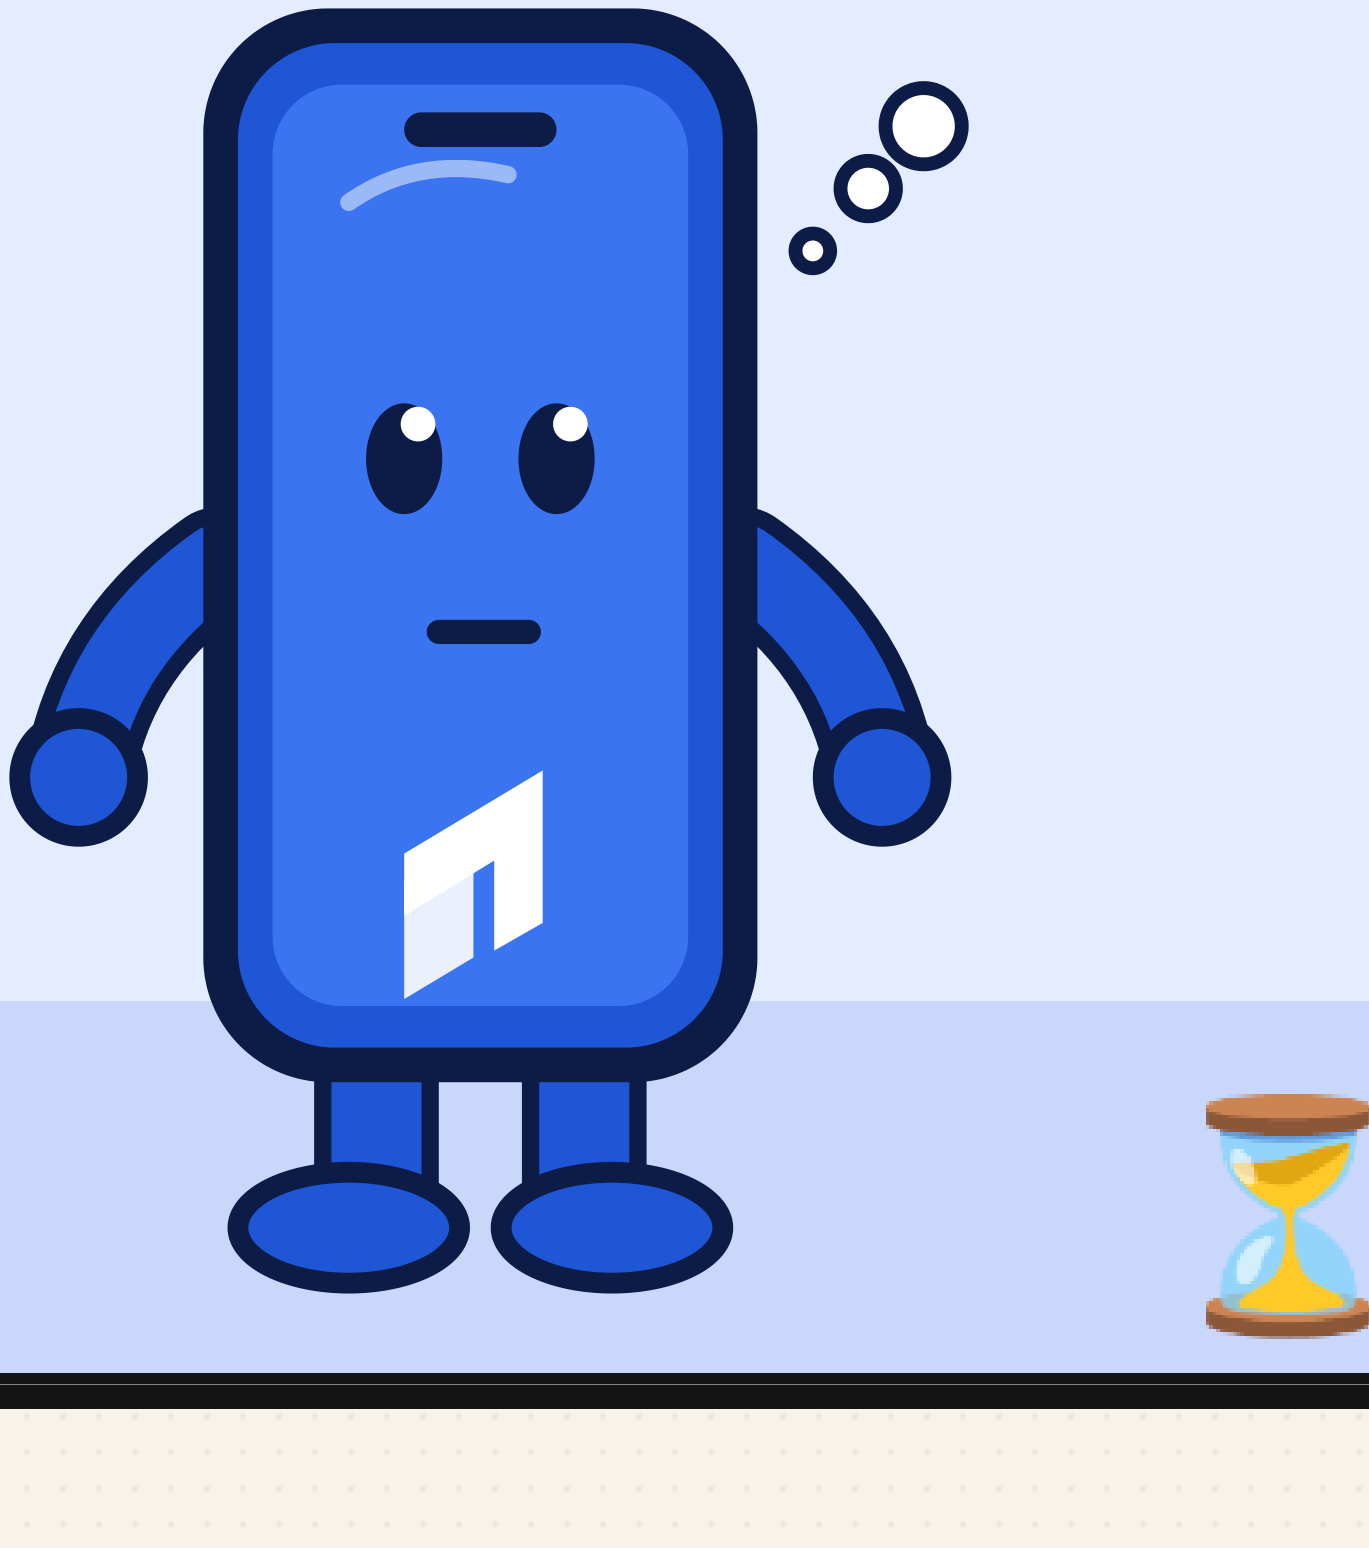

The museum one. Definitely the museum one.

WHY IT CHANGES

Walking up to the wrong stranger costs ten of your twenty minutes.

It was never shyness.

THE MORAL

Same room. Same twenty minutes. A completely different break.

